 of Tennessee

The faculty of the College of Law are justifiably proud of its graduates. We present them here with a brief resume of their achievements and interests. A great variety of talent and potential are represented in these young men and women. We recommend that you inquire further about the possibility of one or more of these graduates joining your organization or firm. Our placement office and the entire faculty stand ready to assist you in this process in any reasonable way.

Dean

The University of Tennessee College of Law commenced operation in 1890 and has continuously sought to provide high quality legal education in a university community.

While the principal objective of the Law College is to prepare students for the private practice of law, its total mission is more broadly conceived. The College of Law exposes students to the legal issues of our society enabling them to develop analytical skills in respect to decisional law and statutes, the ability effectively to communicate to others their knowledge of the law, an awareness of the historical growth of the law, a knowledgeable appreciation of the inter-relationship of law and society, and the ability to use law as an implement of societal control and development. Students are thus equipped to serve their community not only as advocates and counselors, but as policy-makers and active, responsible citizens as well.

The coordinated program of the College of Law has three dimensions: teaching and learning, research into and appraisal of our legal system and institutions, and service to the community. Each plays a significant role in the College of Law as a modern law center.

The teaching and learning element of legal education at the College of Law involves a cooperative classroom interaction between faculty and students in the analytical study of a host of questions and problems found in today's legal profession. These involve decisional law, statutory interpretation, administrative regulation, techniques of trial and appellate advocacy, and the roles and responsibilities of the lawyer as he advises and represents his clients. While proper consideration is given to the problems of Tennessee law, the course of study is conducted with a view toward providing an awareness and understanding of the regional and national perspectives so as to prepare our students for service in any state.

The College of Law is also directly involved in providing service to the community of which it is a part. A major element of public service is centered in the Legal Clinic where students, under the guidance of skilled and experienced licensed practitioners, provide legal services to indigent persons of Knox County. Additionally, through research, consultative, and other type services to legal institutions and groups within the state, the College of Law seeks to participate in the development and improvement of the society in which its students may eventually practice law.

In combination, the direction and objectives of the Law College lead to the development not of a narrow technician, but of a student of the law with the perspective, breadth and understanding necessary for the accomplishment of the many tasks assigned by society to the legal profession.

Over the past year the Placement Office of the College of Law has been expanding and improving its service to the prospective employers of our students and alumni. It is our hope that the UT LAWYERS will further aid you in your efforts to retain the services of our well-qualified graduates. The brief information on each student can be supplemented with detailed resumes by contacting the Placement Office.

We have ready facilities for on-campus interviews and will be happy to make all necessary arrangements. If a visit to our campus is not feasible, we welcome letters and telephone calls and can assist you in establishing communication with the students.

The Placement Office can also help in the search for experienced attorneys as we maintain a file of alumni who are seeking to change employment.

We are looking forward to assisting you.
