New Faculty

The University of Tennessee College of Law will add three new professors and one visiting professor to its faculty this year. Carol Mutter, Glenn Reynolds, and James Thompson will become full-time members of the law faculty, and Malcolm Morris will be a visiting professor for the 1989-90 academic year.

Carol Mutter, who has been with the College of Law for six years on "visiting" status, has been named to the faculty. She will be teaching Civil Procedure I and Contracts I in the fall. Ms. Mutter received her B.A. in 1968 from The University of Tennessee, and earned her J.D. degree in 1975 from Georgetown University Law Center. She served as a research editor for the Georgetown Law Journal. Before teaching at GCT, Ms. Mutter taught high school English, served as a judicial clerk, and practiced law with Washington, DC, and Georgia law firms. She is a member of the American Bar Association and the American Society of Law and Medicine, and is currently working on an article titled "Comparative Negligence and Joint and Several Liability -- Decisions for Tennessee." Professor Mutter lives in Knoxville with her husband, Dr. Mitchell Mutter, and their three children.

Glenn H. Reynolds will be teaching Constitutional Law I in the fall. Mr. Reynolds received his B.A. from The University of Tennessee in 1982, and earned his J.D. degree from Yale Law School in 1985. He was the managing editor of the Yale Law & Policy Review. Mr. Reynolds served as a special assistant to State Senator William Ortwein, held a judicial clerkship, and was associated with a Washington, DC, law firm before joining our faculty. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences, and is currently working on "The Elvis Problem: Defining "Religion" Under the First Amendment," and "International Trade in Satellite Launch Services: Some Problems and Solutions."

James Thompson will be teaching Civil Procedure I in the fall. Mr. Thompson received his undergraduate degree in 1968 from the U.S. Air Force Academy, and in 1975 earned the J.D. from

The University of Florida Law School. Before becoming a law professor, Mr. Thompson served in the Air Force as a pilot, was a judicial law clerk in Louisiana, was an Assistant Attorney General in Colorado, and was a partner/associate with several law firms before founding the law firm of Watrous, Ehler & Thompson in Lakewood, Colorado. Mr. Thompson will move from the Rockies to the Smokies with his wife, Linda, and their two children.

Malcolm Morris will join us as a visiting professor this fall, teaching Wealth Transfer Tax and Income Tax while Professor Amy Hess takes a leave of absence. Mr. Morris received his B.S. in 1969 from Cornell, earned his J.D. in 1972 from SUNY - Buffalo, and received an LL.M. in 1977 from Northwestern. He is currently a professor at Northern Illinois University College of Law. Professor Morris has written several articles on tax and is highly regarded in the field.

FARRAGUT HIGH SCHOOL WINS MOCK TRIAL COMPETITION

A team of high school students from Farragut High School won the Knox area regionals of the 1989 Tennessee High School Mock Trial Competition. They will represent our area in the statewide finals March 31 and April 1 in Nashville. The regional finals, held March 15th in the Moot Court Room of Taylor Law Center, featured a very close round between Farragut and Karns. Law student advisors for Farragut are James Brooks and Michael Casterline. Karns' law student advisors are Clifton Miller and Stephanie Slater. The competition is sponsored locally by the Knoxville Barristers and the Public Law Institute of UT College of Law.

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR
AMY HESS UP FOR PROMOTION
Associate Professor Amy Hess is being considered for promotion to full professor. Student comments are invited; please relay them to the Dean's Office.

OUR CONGRATULATIONS ...

... go to Mary Ann Bledsoe, Administrative Services Assistant, Dean's Office, for receiving a 10-Year Service Award from UT.

... go to law students, John Bunnell and Gary Carpentier, for being elected law representatives to the 1990 Graduate Student Association.

OUR BEST WISHES ...

... go with Professor Ashfaq Khan of the University of Punjab, Lahore, Pakistan, as he continues his study of legal clinics in the U.S. with the Fulbright Professional Program, Council for International Exchange of Scholars. After a month at the College of Law's Legal Clinic, Professor Khan will now go to the University of Chicago, Northwestern University, and Washington, DC.

TAYLOR TRIVIA: Who was George C. Taylor?
Answer to last month's Taylor Trivia:
 In the early years "a good English education was required" for admission. In 1905, a high school education was required before a degree was to be awarded, and in 1909, a high school education was required for admission to the College of Law. In 1917, one year of college work was required for admission, and in 1925, this was increased to two years of college work. This was raised to three years of pre-law college work beginning with the class entering in the fall of 1952. By the fall of 1968, four years of college and a bachelor's degree were required for admission. In the fall of 1965, students were required to take the Law School Admission Test, either before entering or during the first year. By the fall of 1968, the LSAT was required prior to admission. For a history of the College's early years, see 16 Tenn. L. Rev. 679 (1941).

TED LECLERCQ WINS
TOP ADVOCACY PRIZE
IN NEW YORK

Ted Le Clercq was named "Best Oral Advocate" at the Thirteenth Annual Robert F. Wagner, Sr., Memorial Moot Court Competition, March 8-11, in New York City. The team of Le Clercq, Brian T. Babb, and Sondra F. Wooten defeated teams from Georgetown University, John Marshall Law School, and New York University. The team's faculty advisor is Professor Pat Hardin.

The Wagner Competition is a national event named in memory of Senator Robert Wagner, who sponsored the National Labor Relations Act. This year's hypothetical case was an appeal concerning union representation of employees after an employer acquired a new production facility.
