The University of Tennessee College of Law commenced operation in 1890 and has continuously sought to provide high quality legal education in a university community.

While the principal objective of the Law College is to prepare students for the private practice of law, its total mission is more broadly conceived. The College of Law exposes students to the legal issues of our society enabling them to develop analytical skills in respect to decisional law and statutes, the ability effectively to communicate to others their knowledge of the law, an awareness of the historical growth of the law, a knowledgable appreciation of the inter-relationship of law and society, and the ability to use law as an implement of societal control and development. Students are thus equipped to serve their community not only as advocates and counselors, but as policy-makers and active, responsible citizens as well.

The coordinated program of the College of Law has three dimensions: teaching and learning, research into and appraisal of our legal system and institutions, and service to the community. Each plays a significant role in the College of Law as a modern law center.

The teaching and learning element of legal education at the College of Law involves a cooperative classroom interaction between faculty and students in the analytical study of a host of questions and problems found in today's legal profession. These involve decisional law, statutory interpretation, administrative regulation, techniques of trial and appellate advocacy, and the roles and responsibilities of the lawyer as he advises and represents his clients. While proper consideration is given to the problems of Tennessee law, the course of study is conducted with a view toward providing an awareness and understanding of the regional and national perspectives so as to prepare our students for service in any state.

The College of Law is also directly involved in providing service to the community of which it is a part. A major element of public service is centered in the Legal Clinic where students, under the guidance of skilled and experienced licensed practitioners, provide legal services to indigent persons of Knox County. Additionally, through research, consultative, and other type services to legal institutions and groups within the state, the College of Law seeks to participate in the development and improvement of the society in which its students may eventually practice law.

In combination, the direction and objectives of the Law College lead to the development not of a narrow technician, but of a student of the law with the perspective, breadth and understanding necessary for the accomplishment of the many tasks assigned by society to the legal profession.

The College of Law Building

Since 1950 the College of Law has occupied a building especially designed for teaching, study, and research in the law. In the spring of 1971 the Law College occupied the new wing begun in the fall of 1969. The new addition has doubled the available facilities. The library, the classrooms, and the offices are air-conditioned. Adequate classrooms, courtroom, seminar rooms, a private office for each full-time faculty member, the well-equipped offices of the Legal Clinic, and a spacious, well-lighted Law Library are contained in this modern building. Stack space for more than 200,000 volumes will permit the repository of one of the largest law book collections in the South.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains the official state reports of all states, the complete National Reporter system, which covers all states and the federal courts, the Annotated Reports, standard sets of miscellaneous reports, the reports of the Canadian cases and of English cases from the Yearbook to date. In addition to these, there are adequate encyclopedias, digests and dictionaries, standard textbooks, law reviews, and current loose-leaf services, totalling together more than 90,000 catalogued volumes. The Library is under the supervision of a full-time member of the faculty with thorough training in library science as well as law. The physical facilities, the collection of books, and the library staff combine to make the Law Library of The University of Tennessee one of the best in the South. Law students also have the use of the collections in the Main University Library, which is located just across the street from the Law Library, and the Undergraduate Library a few blocks away.

Legal Clinic

The University of Tennessee Legal Clinic was established in 1947 and recently celebrated its 25th anniversary. Though the Clinic provides legal assistance to indigent persons, it is designed primarily as a teaching device to correlate theory and practice. It introduces the student under faculty supervision to the law in practice through personal contact with clients and their problems. The Legal Clinic functions as a large law office in which the student gains experience in interviewing clients, writing legal letters, investigating and evaluating facts, preparing memoranda of law, preparing cases for trial or adjustment, and briefing cases. Classroom work supplements the handling of actual cases. The student is thus trained in the technique of law practice and the management of a law office. The ethical responsibilities of lawyers and their function as public servants are stressed. Under present rules of the Tennessee Supreme Court, Clinic students, under the direct supervision of the Legal Clinic staff, are certified to practice before all the courts of Tennessee.

The Tennessee Law Review

The Tennessee Law Review is a legal periodical published quarterly by the faculty and students of the College of Law. Candidates for the Review are selected from the second year law class by the Law Review editorial board on the basis of scholarship and writing ability. The editorial board is composed of third year students.

The Review offers an excellent opportunity to those students with the requisite legal aptitude and industry to do legal research and writing of a practical nature. Notes and comments upon important recent decisions are prepared by each student editor under the supervision of the Law Faculty, and are published in the Review.

Student Bar Association

The UT Student Bar Association is a member of the American Law Student Association, which is affiliated with the American Bar Association. As members of S.B.A., all law students have the opportunity to participate in College of Law activities. At weekly meetings the Association sponsors lectures and similar programs. Each spring it sponsors an Annual Law Day. The contributions of the Student Bar Association to legal education have received wide recognition from the faculty, the bench, and the bar.

Legal Fraternities

Three of the largest national legal fraternities maintain active chapters at the College of Law. The Roosevelt Inn of Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity was established at the Law College in 1919. The McReynolds Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta Legal Fraternity was founded at the College of Law in 1916. The John Catron Senate of Delta Theta Phi received its charter in 1966.

The legal fraternities have traditionally played a leading role in the College of Law affairs, professional as well as social. Weekly luncheon programs and round table discussions and lectures feature addresses by prominent speakers drawn from the legal profession and from commerce and industry. The fraternities foster a consciousness of the ideals of the legal profession and good fellowship among their members.

Law Women

The Law Women is an officially recognized campus organization associated with the University of Tennessee Law School. It is designed to promote the interest of women in the law and to provide a vehicle of expression for the approximately 80 women law students in the law school.

The Law Women seeks to provide learning experiences through organization of workshops, seminars, special speakers programs and community activities on contemporary issues of interest to women in the legal profession.

Black Law Student Caucus

The Black Law Student Caucus of the University of Tennessee is a chapter member of the Black American Law Student Association. The purpose of the Caucus is to articulate and promote the needs and goals of Black Law Students at the University of Tennessee; to foster and encourage an attitude of professional competence, and to focus upon the relationship of the Black attorney to the American legal structure and the Black community; to assist Black students with information pertaining to law school; to instill in the Black attorney and law student a greater awareness of and commitment to the legal and non-legal needs of the Black community; to solicit funds, to provide financial assistance in the form of loans, grants and scholarships to needy Black law students; and to establish community-oriented legal programs to assist the University of Tennessee and the Knoxville area generally.

Moot Courts

Trial Moot Court. In order to meet a need for practical training and experience there is conducted in the College of Law a Moot Court. The court is divided into sections. Each section meets seven times a quarter throughout the year. Attendance at this court is required of all students. Students participate in the organization of the court and serve at times as sheriff, clerk, and jurors. Senior students act as counsel in both law and equity cases, and are required to perform all the duties of counsel. Other students will fulfill their required attendance by serving as jurors.

The Moot Court room reproduces faithfully a modern courtroom. The judge's bench, jury box, facilities for attorneys and litigants, and space for spectators contribute an air of reality that makes for more effective courtroom training.

Courts of all kinds, criminal, civil, equity, state, and federal, including the Court of Appeals of Tennessee and the Supreme Court of Tennessee, hold their sessions in the City of Knoxville.

Appellate Moot Court. Each student in the College of Law participates in Appellate Argument for at least one quarter. This provides an opportunity for students to gain experience and training in appellate argument and brief preparation. Those who have participated in Appellate Argument are eligible for the Law Day Competition and selection to represent the College of Law in the National Inter-Law School Moot Court Competition. Regional winners in this competition go to New York for the finals.

The John W. Green Scholarship. By his will, the late John W. Green established several law scholarships which are to be awarded in recognition of unusual ability in the general development of character, ambition to excel, and interest in the general development and advancement of the ethical standards of the legal profession. These scholarships are awarded annually by the Faculty of the College of Law to those members of the three law classes who possess to a marked degree those qualities and academic ability and character as above provided.

The University of Tennessee Freshman Scholarships are available each year to students entering the first year class of the College of Law. These scholarships will pay university fees for the academic year with the balance available for books. They are limited to residents of Tennessee who have attended a college in Tennessee. The awards are made to qualified and deserving applicants on the basis of scholarship, personality, and qualities of leadership. Information and application blanks may be obtained from the College of Law.

Awards will entitle the holder to an amount at least equal to the full resident fees for an academic year, and are made on the basis of scholarship, character, and need. Chancellor Woodlee suggested that "potential scholastic development be given consideration equally with prior scholastic attainment."

Graves in memory of her husband, an alumnus of the College of Law, member of the Knoxville Bar, and a long time Senator in the General Assembly of Tennessee. It will be made on the basis of scholarship, character, and financial need.

The Knoxville Auxiliary of the Tennessee Bar Association has established an endowed scholarship for the College of Law. Until this fund is large enough to provide an annual scholarship from income, a part of the income will be used to provide an annual award to the law student who has the highest scholastic average on his first year of study in the College of Law. The amount of the award will be designated by the Board of the Auxiliary. The first award was made in the spring of 1971.

The Robert L. Forrester Memorial Scholarship has been established in memory of Robert L. Forrester, a prominent attorney in Watertown, Tennessee, by his son Nelson Forrester. The scholarship will be awarded on the basis of character, scholarship, and financial need.

The Judge George Caldwell Taylor Memorial Scholarship has been established by the family in memory of Judge George Caldwell Taylor, Judge of the United States District Court, Eastern Division of Tennessee, member of the Board of Trustees, University of Tennessee, and an alumnus of the College of Law. The Scholarship will be awarded to a law student or a student entering the College of Law who is a citizen of the State of Tennessee. It will be awarded on the basis of scholarship, character, and financial need.

The Taylor H. Cox Memorial Scholarship has been established in memory of Judge Taylor H. Cox of the Knoxville Bar by members of his firm. Judge Cox was a graduate of the College of Law and a loyal alumnus. The scholarship is available to a law student or a student entering the College of Law. It is awarded on the basis of scholarship, character, and financial need.

The Charles A. and Myrtle Warner Memorial Scholarship Fund has been established by Dean and Mrs. Harold C. Warner, in memory of Dean Warner's parents. The award will be made annually on the basis of scholarship, character, and financial need, to law students or students entering the College of Law.

Because of the interest of the late Syllus E. Hodges of the Knoxville Bar in the Legal Clinic program of the College of Law, the Syllus E. Hodges Memorial Scholarship Fund was established by a gift from his widow, Mrs. Irene Hayes Hodges, to be awarded to a third-year student on the basis of character, scholarship, and interest in participating in the Legal Clinic program of the College of Law.

The alumni of the College of Law have established the Harold C. Warner Centurion Endowment Fund. The income from this fund will be used to provide scholarships for deserving students. The awards will be made by the Scholarship Committee.

The Howard H. Baker Memorial Fund has been established by friends and relatives in memory of Howard H. Baker, Congressman from the Second Tennessee District for many years, and an alumnus of The University of Tennessee College of Law. An award will be made annually on the basis of scholarship, character, and need to a law student or a student entering the College of Law.

The Frank B. Creekmore Memorial Award has been established by the Creekmore family and friends in memory of Frank B. Creekmore, a prominent Knoxville attorney. The award is made annually to a second year law student on the basis of financial need and promise for the general practice of law in Tennessee.

The College of Law Placement Office is continuing to offer its assistance to law firms, corporations, government agencies and other legal employers who are seeking recent law school graduates or experienced attorneys for possible employment. With the increasing number of lawyers entering the job market we encourage you to let us help with your recruiting efforts. Whether your needs are for a recent law school graduate or an experienced attorney to fill a permanent position, or a law student for temporary clerking, we will be happy to help you establish contact with our students or alumni.

Our facilities allow us to arrange for on-campus interviews if it is feasible for your representative to visit us. We will set up time schedules with the students you wish to interview, provide a comfortable interview room, arrange for parking, and assist in making lodging reservations if you so desire.

If a trip to campus is not possible, we welcome letters and telephone calls and will make resumes of our students available to you.

If you would like supplemental information on our March, June, and August, 1974, graduates pictured in this booklet, detailed resumes can be obtained by contacting the Placement Office.

We are looking forward to assisting you with your recruiting efforts.
