FALL, 1964

A Message from the Dean . . .

The nadir in law school enrollments since World War II came in the decade 1950-1960. During this period the emphasis was on engineering and science. This emphasis augmented by scholarships induced many students who would have entered law to go into other fields. The Review of Legal Education published by the American Bar Association Section of Legal Education puts the total enrollment of American Bar Association approved law schools at 40,481 for the year 1960. This figure is slightly larger than the total for 1959 of 38,238. Enrollments in approved law schools have continued to increase as follows: 1961—41,499; 1962, 44,805; and in 1963, 49,553. The figures for 1964 have not been compiled but the upward trend is evident. In the period 1961-1963 the total first year nation-wide enrollment rose from 16,489 to 20,776.

This trend has been reflected in the enrollment in the College of Law. Since we have a class of beginning students entering in each of the four quarters the total number of beginners are those who entered during all quarters.

|---------------------------|-----|
| 1959-1960 beginners | 66 |
| 1960-1961 beginners | 70 |
| 1961-1962 beginners | 103 |
| 1962-1963 beginners | 156 |
| 1963-1964 beginners | 172 |

The only figures available for 1964-1965 are those for the Fall Quarter, which number 113.

The total enrollment of students in the College of Law in the Fall Quarter during the past six years rose from 130 in the Fall of 1959 to 343 in the Fall of 1964. Of the 343 students, 59 or 17.02% are from states other than Tennessee. For a number of years we have had from 10% to 15% out-of-state students.

The increases in enrollment have caused the faculty to consider the enrollment projections for the future. In the Fall of 1964 the Freshmen Class in the University was 3874 as compared with 2834 for the Fall of 1963. Indications are that the enrollments in the Colleges of the University will continue to rise at an accelerated rate. The impact of the increase in this year's freshmen class will reach the College of Law in three years. We believe that law school enrollments will continue the present trend with a large increase in applications beginning in 1967.

These prospects are creating problems of personnel and facilities, such as space and library, that are being studied by the faculty. The reallocation of available space has given us an additional class and seminar room and two additional interviewing offices in the legal clinic. For the convenience of the students, additional quiet study space has been provided in the library stacks and all class rooms are available for study purposes when classes are not in session. We now have in excess of 65,000 volumes in the library, and within approximately four years all stack space, except for continuation of sets, will be exhausted.

In 1963-1964 the admission standards for this year were increased. The standards are still being studied and additional increases will be made from time to time so that we can continue to give our students the best possible legal education.

Some lawyers are expressing concern over the increase in the number of law graduates. They fear that the profession will become overcrowded. It does not appear that this is a matter for immediate concern because of the low enrollments between 1950-1960 compared with the population growth and economic and government expansion during the same period. The ABA approved schools in 1961-1962 conferred 8679 LL.B. degrees and in 1962-1963, 8882 LL.B. degrees were conferred. Frank K. Walmer, Admissions Officer at Columbia University Law School, has stated that "if the demand for lawyers is to be met the law schools must expect to turn out about 20,000 graduates a year by the end of this decade."

In the year 1963-1964 extensive curricula changes were initiated at the College of Law and most of these have been put into effect. It is too early to give a realistic evaluation of these changes, but a faculty committee is constantly studying and evaluating new trends and ideas in legal education.

The increase in the size of the senior class has made it necessary to make an extensive revision of our Moot Court Program. Heretofore three quarters of participation in the trial moot court was required of students, beginning with the sixth quarter. Court was held one evening a week in

American Trial Lawyers Association Conducts Seminar

"From Victim to Verdict" was the title of a seminar conducted by The American Trial Lawyers Association at the UT College of Law on October 9, 1964. ATLA National President Bill Colson of Miami, Florida presided. Program chairman and local governor, J. D. Lee of Madisonville, Tennessee, presented Dean Harold C. Warner the ATLA Meritorious Achievement Award for his contributions to the legal profession.

Speakers from Iowa, Michigan, Florida, and New York discussed opening statements, jury selection, interview closing arguments and other interesting aspects of the trial. This seminar is one of over fifty that are being conducted throughout the United States by the Association to improve the quality of the profession.

the Fall, Winter and Spring Quarters, and a Circuit Court Judge presided. In 1963-1964 there was an average of 75 student lawyers in each quarter and only nine sessions of court each quarter. The result was that each student had very little opportunity to participate.

Beginning with the Fall Quarter 1964 the three Circuit Judges in Knox County, T. Edward Cole, '48; James H. Haynes, '50; and Chester R. Mahood, '48 are conducting the Moot Court program. There are two courts, one meeting on Tuesday evening and the other on Thursday evening. Each court will meet seven times a quarter and court will be held in all four quarters, Fall, Winter, Spring and Summer.

Moot Court participation is still a requirement for graduation, but the time is reduced from three to two quarters. The moot court bar for each quarter will be the students in their eighth and ninth quarters. It is estimated that in each quarter ending with the Summer Quarter there will be 25 student lawyers participating in each court. We are convinced that each student will now receive more training in two quarters than was received in three under the old program.

During the summer we added two full-time faculty members, namely, Assistant Professor Jack D. Jones and Mr. Wheeler A. Rosenbalm. We now have a total of eleven full-time faculty members, five part-time instructors, three Judges for the Moot Court program and three attorneys who are assistants in the Legal Aid Clinic.

It is with great regret that I announce that Professor John C. Baugh has resigned his position as Professor of Law. The duties of his position as University Counsel are taking his entire time. The Faculty of the College of Law will miss Professor Baugh. He is an excellent teacher and he has added materially to the stature of the College.

Placement Services Offered By Law College

The University offers an excellent placement service for all colleges and departments. The College of Law also provides a placement service to assist its graduates in securing professional positions. The growth of our student body and the increasing number of positions available in law firms, corporations, and governmental agencies have brought us to the point of an expanded placement program. The University Placement Service is assisting the College of Law in making this service available on a state and nationwide basis. The U-T Lawyer annually publishes the pictures and biographical sketches of its graduating seniors. This is mailed to all the members of the Tennessee Bar Association.

Today many graduates turn to governmental services, the legal-writing field, or business and finance which provide wide-open opportunities for those not entering private practice.

Private practice is still available to the law graduate in small towns, but the days of hanging up a shingle in a large city and commencing practice are almost gone. Many graduates choose to enter a firm to gain experience and then venture into private practice when they are confident they can make it on their own. The first few years may be difficult, but the rewards and satisfaction of being on one's own usually outweigh the first-year difficulties.

Included in this issue are the pictures and biographical sketches of our 1964-65 law graduates. The Placement Service hopes that the information herein will encourage you to examine and inquire about our future graduates. If you desire further information concerning these graduates, information can be obtained from the Director of Placements, University of Tennessee College of Law.
