DEAN KENNETH L. PENEGAR

The Career Counseling and Placement Office of the College of Law at the University of Tennessee has done a superb job in preparing our students to meet the public. Similarly, that office has created a strong interest among law firms, corporations, and public agencies in our graduates. One of the ways this communication takes place is through the annual publication of this booklet called the University of Tennessee Lawyers of the Future.

The students of our ninety-one year old law school are very well prepared for the practice of law in any jurisdiction in the country as well as for careers in business, public service, and a range of other professional opportunities. Our graduates continue to do exceedingly well on the bar examination in this and other jurisdictions around the country. Perhaps the best indication of all of the strong market for our graduates is the greatly increased number of firms, agencies, and companies interviewing on our campus each year.

We welcome the opportunity to work with you, your firm or organization, and hope we can assist you in meeting your organization's staffing needs and career aspirations of our students.

CAREER PLANNING & PLACEMENT SERVICES

The College of Law provides career counseling and placement services to meet the needs of the student who is looking for his/her first clerkship, the recent graduate who is beginning a legal career, and the alumnus who is seeking a career change. With this goal in mind, the ongoing activities include workshops in interviewing skills and resume writing, scheduling on-campus interviews, coordinating out-of-state hiring conferences, and all law-related employment opportunities, whether with law firms, corporations, insurance companies or government agencies.

The on-campus interview has proven to be the most successful and fiscally sound method of recruitment for small and large firms. Although on-campus interviewing is scheduled throughout the year, the fall is traditionally the time in which the attentions of law firms and law schools are especially focused on the recruitment process. The 1984 on-campus interviewing session will begin September 12.

We look forward to a mutually beneficial and successful recruiting season.

LAW CENTER PROGRAMS & ORGANIZATIONS

Legal Clinic

The University of Tennessee Legal Clinic was established in 1947. Through the process of providing legal assistance to indigent persons, the Clinic serves primarily as a teaching device to correlate theory and practice through personal contact with clients and their problems. The Legal Clinic functions as a large law office in which the student gains experience in interviewing clients, writing legal letters, investigating and evaluating facts, preparing cases for trial or adjustment, and participating in actual cases. The student is thus trained in the technique of law practice and the management of a law office. The ethical responsibilities of lawyers and their function as public servants are stressed. Under present rules of the Tennessee Supreme Court, Clinic students, under the direct supervision of the Legal Clinic staff are certified to practice before all the courts of Tennessee.

Public Law Institute

The Public Law Institute provides research and continuing legal education programs for the judiciary, the bar, and educators, as well as public and private agencies. The Judicial Newsletter is published quarterly by the Institute, in addition to the expanding library of books on Tennessee law intended for use by judges, attorneys, and the lay public.

The Public Law Institute creates opportunities for members of the faculty and the student body to engage in legal research and publication as a public service to the people of Tennessee.

The Tennessee Law Review

The Tennessee Law Review is a legal periodical published quarterly by the faculty and students of the College of Law. Candidates for the Review are selected on the basis of scholarship and writing ability. The editorial board of the Review is composed of upper-class students.

The Review offers an excellent opportunity to those students with the requisite legal aptitude and industry to do legal research and writing of a scholarly and practical nature. Notes and comments upon important recent decisions are prepared by each student editor under the supervision of the law faculty and are published in the Review.

A student may not serve on the editorial board while also participating in Moot Court Board activities or while serving as a student instructor in the Research and Writing Program.

Moot Courts

All students are eligible to compete for a place on various intra- and inter-law school Moot Court teams. There is an annual Law Day Competition and the College of Law participates in the National Inter-Law School Moot Court Competition. Regional winners in this competition compete in final arguments at the national level. Teams from the Law College have frequently won honors in the regional competition, and in 1976 UT's team won the final round of the national competition in New York City. The 1981 team composed of Wanda Glenn, Tom Slagle, and Louann Smith again took top honors in this prestigious competition. The 1982 team of Tom Slagle, Louann Smith, and Scott Rose placed second in the nation.

Similar programs are conducted by the Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition, the Giles Sutherland Rich Patent Law Moot Court Competition, the Frederick Douglass Moot Court Competition, the Wagner Labor Law Moot Court Competition, and the Irving R. Kaufman Securities Law Moot Court Competition.

The Advocates' Prize Moot Court Competition was established through the generosity of a good friend of the College of Law. After extensive intra-school competition final arguments are made at the annual Law Day program. Customarily, a panel of three judges hears the final arguments. In 1984 the panel was led by the Honorable Sam J. Ervin III, U.S. Court of Appeals, Fourth Judicial Circuit. The other panel members were the Honorable Odell Horton, U.S. District Court, Western District of Tennessee and the Honorable Eugene E. Siler, Jr., U.S. District Court, Eastern and Western Districts of Kentucky. Prizes are awarded on the basis of outstanding brief, best oral argument, and best appellate advocacy team.

For further practical experience, students are encouraged to visit the courts of all types (criminal, civil, equity, state, and federal, including the Court of Appeals of Tennessee and the Supreme Court of Tennessee) which hold their sessions in the city of Knoxville.

The Moot Court Board is composed of third-year students who have demonstrated appellate advocacy ability through various inter- and intra-school competitions. The Board develops the problem and coordinates all the activities for the Advocates' Prize Moot Court Competition and is involved in the selection of other Moot Court teams representing the Law College. In order to increase the development of advocacy skills, the Board has developed a videotape library. In addition, the Board sponsors various trial and appellate court hearings at the Law College. The Tennessee Court of Appeals has for the past five years regularly held one day of "live" appellate arguments in the College.

The Order of the Coif

The Order of the Coif is a national law school honor society, election to which depends upon exceptional scholastic attainment. Only those students who, at the time of their graduation, are among the first tenth of their class are eligible. Election is made by the law faculty and is the highest honor regularly conferred by the College of Law.

Student Bar Association

The UT Student Bar Association is a member of the American Law Student Association, which is affiliated with the American Bar Association. As members of the S.B.A., all law students have the opportunity to participate in College of Law activities. At weekly meetings the Association sponsors lectures and similar programs. Each spring it sponsors an annual Law Day.

Black Law Student Caucus

The Black Law Student Caucus of The University of Tennessee is a member of the Black American Law Student Association. Devoted to the articulation and promotion of the needs and goals of Black law students at The University of Tennessee, the Caucus attempts to increase the awareness and commitment of the legal profession to the Black community. Skills are developed by participation in events such as the Frederick Douglass Moot Court Competition, community projects, and conferences. Finally, the Caucus is concerned with dispensing information pertaining to legal study to interested Black students, and with soliciting and awarding funds, grants, and scholarships to Black law students.

Association of Trial Lawyers of America— Student Chapter

The goal of the Student Chapter of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America is to provide students with exposure to the field of trial advocacy through the use of speakers and other educational programs. Membership in the organization also affords students the opportunity to participate in seminars and other programs offered by the National and State Trial Lawyers Associations.

Law Women

The Law Women organization offers a diversity of programs, with speakers on legal topics such as assertiveness training, police work, and spouse beating. Law Women also offers the opportunity to work in community and University projects. It provides informative assistance to the Rape Crisis Center, and in conjunction with the Women's Center and other University departments has sponsored conferences on women in education, employment discrimination, and women's health. It also provides information pertaining to current litigation and pending legislation of interest to women.

Law Women engages in projects with other schools, and members regularly attend the regional and national conferences on women and the law.

East Tennessee Lawyers' Guild

The East Tennessee Lawyers' Guild is a group of law students interested in using their legal skills to serve the total community and to promote basic political and economic change. The ETLG is a chapter of the National Lawyers

Guild, an organization which seeks "to unite the lawyers, law students, legal workers and jailhouse lawyers of America . . . to the end that human rights shall be regarded as more sacred than property interests."

Ongoing projects initiated by the ETLG include the development of resource materials and instruction on legal rights for high school students and indigent prisoners in Tennessee. A speakers program has brought people to the law school to discuss issues ranging from reform of conditions at the local jail to national lobbying efforts against repressive legislation. Members see the Guild as a place where they can get support and cooperation for concerns as diverse as environmental protection, public interest law, minority rights, and personal adjustment to legal study.

Student Legal Assistance Program

"SLAP" is an organization of law student volunteers who serve as student defenders within the University community. It provides opportunity to develop advocacy skills as well as providing needed representation to University students. Most of the student defenders' caseloads involve the defense of undergraduate students accused of violating University Standards of Conduct. This requires prehearing investigation and preparation of cases for adjudication, as well as familiarization with and implementation of appropriate University procedure, including written briefs and oral arguments.

The Forum

As the student newspaper of the Law College, the Forum seeks to provide a vehicle for the expression of student views on a wide range of subjects. Constructive criticism is encouraged and numerous questions concerning curriculum, teaching methods, and grading practices have been aired through this medium.

Legal Fraternities

Two of the largest national legal fraternities maintain active chapters at the College of Law. The Roosevelt Inn of Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity was established at the Law College in 1919. The McReynolds Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta Legal Fraternity was founded at the College of Law in 1916.

The legal fraternities have traditionally played a leading role in College of Law affairs, professional as well as social. Weekly luncheon programs and roundtable discussions and lectures feature addresses by prominent speakers drawn from the legal profession and from commerce and industry. A "ride-along" program with the Knoxville Police Department is also sponsored. The fraternities foster a consciousness of the ideals of the legal profession and good fellowship among their members.
