TAYLOR TRIVIA: The "Centennial" Law Alumni Directory will be published this year. When was the first law alumni directory published? Answer to last month's Taylor Trivia: The College of Law had its "own" building in 1927 called "Tennessee Hall" on the corner of Main and Henley. The George C. Taylor Law Center on Cumberland Avenue was the first building actually "built" for the Law School.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, age, handicap, or veteran status in provision of educational opportunities or employment opportunities and benefits. UT does not discriminate on the basis of sex or handicap in the education programs and activities which it operates, pursuant to Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Public Law 92-318, and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Public Law 93-112, respectively. This policy extends to both employment by and admission to the University, Inquiries concerning Title IX and Section 504 should be directed to the Director of Affirmative Action, 403B Andy Holt Tower, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, TN 37996-0144, telephone 615/974-2498. Charges of violation of the above policy should also be directed to the office of the Director of Affirmative Action. E01-1610-007-90

Our "chip off the ole block" congratulations ..

... go Sam McGee Rivkin, son of Professor Dean Hill Rivkin and Brenda McGee, Class of '84, for being named to the Tennessee State Olympic Development Program for soccer. Sam competed in Las Crusas, New Mexico in April as part of the World Collegiate Championships in soccer.

Our condolences ...

- ... go to Professor Neil Cohen on the death of his fatherin-law last month.
- ... go to Dean Marilyn Yarbrough on the death of her grandmother last month.

Centennial Law Week

The University of Tennessee College of Law honored students and faculty during its "Centennial Law Week" April 2-6. Awards were given to students and faculty for outstanding achievements during the year. The featured guests were Justice Antonin Scalia of the United States Supreme Court, the Honorable Odell Horton of the United States District Court, Western District of Tennessee, the Honorable Martha Craig Daughtrey of the Tennessee Supreme Court, and the Honorable Thomas G. Hull of the United States District Court, Eastern District of Tennessee.

The first place prize in the Advocates' Prize appellate moot court competition was presented to the team of Lorraine Lester-Thompson and Michael F. Jameson. Mr. Jameson was also named Best Oralist. The Best Brief award went to the team of Crystal A. Schrof and Roy Satterwhite III. Schrof and Satterwhite also placed second in the overall competition. The team of Shaun

Brown and Greg Addison won the Ray H. Jenkins Trial Competition. Brown also won the Best Oral Advocate award in the Jenkins competition.

Dean Yarbrough presented special citations for outstanding contributions to the College to Laura A. Shaw for her leadership as chairperson of the Moot Court Board, Kenneth F. Irvine, Jr. for his role in promoting the Class of 1990 Scholarship Fund, and Angela R. Magill for her management of the Tennessee Law Review as the Editor in Chief.

Students receiving academic awards from West Publishing Company, Callaghan and Company, and Michie Company included Robert W. Horton, John M. Gauldin, and Paul E. Kaufman, a June 1989 graduate now associated with the Knoxville firm of Gilreath and Associates. Mr. Horton also received a special award from the Knoxville Bar Auxiliary to the Tennessee Bar Association for academic achievement during the first year of studies, and Mr. Gauldin also received the Herbert L. Davis Trust Fund Award for earning the highest scholastic average during the first two years of study. Lu Ann Hatcher, a June 1989 graduate from Jefferson City, received the United States Law Week Award, which is given to the student who made the most academic progress during the third year of studies.

The Vinson and Elkins Achievement Awards for Moot Court were presented by Craig W. Murray to Marty R. Phillips for Oral Advocacy and to Laura Rule Hendricks for Brief Writing. John A. Lucas of Hunton and Williams presented J. Rosson Pepper with the Hunton and Williams Law Review Prize for writing excellence. Matthias Gottschalk received first prize in the Nathan Burkan Memorial Competition, which is a writing competition concentrating on patents and trademarks. Kenneth D. Hale, a June 1989 graduate now associated with the Bristol firm of Penn, Stuart, Eskridge and Jones, received the Charles H. Miller Clinical Achievement Award. Kenneth F. Irvine is the third recipient of the James L. Powers III Award for excellence in criminal advocacy.

John H. Zwald received the McClung Medal for excellence in Moot Court and Procedure. Mr. Zwald was a member of the 1989-90 National Moot Court team and served as vice-chairperson for the 1989-90 Moot Court Board. Sarah R. Bird received the National Association of Women Lawyers Award for academic achievement, for presenting a personable and professional image, and for showing promise in the future of significant contributions to the advancement of women in society. Laura R. Hendricks received the first annual Susan B. Anthony award for academic achievement as well as her commitment to enhancing the progress of women, especially the legal rights of women. (continued on next page)

Three faculty members were recognized for their superior achievements. Professor Joseph H. King, Jr. received the Harold C. Warner Outstanding Teacher Award for his excellence in classroom teaching. The Warner Award for outstanding service to the institution went to Professor John A. Sebert, Jr., and for superior achievement in scholarship to Professor Thomas D. Eisele. Professor Robert M. Lloyd received a plaque for being selected by law students to receive the Student Bar Association Outstanding Faculty Award.

Phi Delta Phi is having a Garage Sale in August. Now is the time to "spring clean" and donate "treasures" to a good cause. Call Liz Roy (home) 694-8629 or (work) 637-0203 or Jayson Hill (home) 588-5615 for further information or "treasure" pick-up. All proceeds from the sale will be channeled directly back into the College of Law through a PDP project. This is your opportunity to convert junk into law!

VOICES FROM THE LEGAL CLINIC

by Professor Dean Hill Rivkin Director, UT Legal Clinic

With students heading to summer jobs with law firms, it is an appropriate time to discuss the public service responsibility of the legal profession. Since its founding, the U.T. Legal Clinic has served as one of a network of institutions that seek to fulfill responsibilities of the profession for the legal needs of the public. We invite you to spend a few minutes in the lobby of the Legal Clinic and to watch Doris Gentry, our receptionist, talk on the phone to the scores of potential clients who call each day. Doris' job is extremely demanding; she is constantly fielding questions about problems and referring these individuals to the appropriate community resources. For every one case that the U.T. Legal Clinic takes, we are forced to turn away scores more. We refer the others either to the Knoxville Legal Aid Society (KLAS), a federally-funded legal services program, or to the Lawyer Referral Service of the Knoxville Bar Association (KBA).

The KBA program strives to match individuals with lawyers in specific areas of expertise. There is a minimal charge for the first consultation; the client may have learned enough to resolve the legal problem, or decide to hire that lawyer, look for another, handle the matter pro se, or forego further action. For indigent clients, whose cases cannot be handled either by the Legal Clinic or KLAS, the KBA has a pro bono program. This program draws on the talents of all too few dedicated attorneys in Knoxville who are willing to perform pro bono representation for those too poor to pay an attorney. The cases that these lawyers take on are often extraordinarily complex: difficult bankruptcies, acrimonious custody disputes, technical cases involving Social Security benefits or unemployment benefits, etc. Those who participate are models for us all.

Unfortunately, there are many lawyers both in Knoxville and around the country who resist the idea of pro bono representation. They view it as an infringement on their private autonomy, often forgetting that lawyering is very much a public profession. When you are with your firm this summer, make an effort to explore whether pro bono opportunities are available to you as summer associates, and to associates in the firm. Several law firms around the country have instituted excellent programs in which young associates (including summer associates) have performed meaningful legal work for clients in need. For those of you fortunate enough to be part of such a firm, explore what motivates the publicspirited lawyers in the firm who give of their time and energy. For those of you not so fortunate, you may want to discuss the idea of pro bono service with members of the firm. You may even be able to make the case that such service is not only good for the soul, but also for the bottom line (e.g., where taking on a case and prevailing yields statutory attorney's fees).

All of us in the Clinic would welcome discussing these issues with you. We would like to share out excitement about public service and our lengthy experience in performing this important work. We wish you well this summer.
