Hon. Judge Sean Lane

I was employed by American Airlines for 27 years and am currently retired. Although my current pension is small, I need every bit of it to pay my bills. I worked hard and upheld my part of the employment contract earning my salary and benefits as an active employee. It is not right for American Airlines to be able to break this agreement and turn the obligation to pay my earned pension over to the US Government, it is morally wrong. AMR should be required to pay me in full for the work I performed, not walk away from the deferred portion of my income/benefits.

Please, your honor, do not allow our pensions to be terminated. We implore you to consider...the welfare of current retirees and not bail out on those of us who did not bail out on AA over the last several decades.

Thank you in advance for your consideration...
